A SIMPLE EVENING FROCK.

The accompanying drawing shows a smart but simple evening frock easily made by the home dressmaker. This has a tunic of old gold chiffon falling over an under slip of self-tone satin. Gold tulle fills the neck and sleeves. Around the 'V' shaped corsage, the bottom of the elbow sleeves and edging the skirt, portion of the tunic on bottom and front is a banding of gilt embroidery. A narrow width of old gold velvet marks the high waist line and a flat bow of the same finishes the point of the corsage.

For the Bridegroom.

Fads and Fancies.

To realize the small figure cut by a bridegroom at his own wedding one need only peruse the pages of a book of etiquette having to do with the marriage ceremony. There are reams of instructions for the bride, from how to carry her veil to how she shall greet the business acquaintances of her father. But how about the poor neglected bridegroom? There are no pages written for his enlightenment. He does well to get a paragraph or so tucked down near the end of the story. No one tells him how to carry his hat, or carries whether he has a hat at all. He is supposed to efface himself, to enter into the scheme of things only when the ceremony cannot go along without him.

There is only one occasion upon which the bridegroom is absolutely necessary, and that is when the minister must have some one to pronounce the husband of the fair bride. Even then the poor harassed man has a propensity for slipping the ring into the wrong pocket, so that he is compelled to fumble for it. In the end he drops it, whereupon it promptly rolls out of sight and is rescued only after much confusion and considerable embarrassment. Men, without number have been known to forget the golden circlet of sweet bondage altogether.

Not only must the man in the case assume a neutral demeanor during the festivities, but he must dress the part. His clothes are black and solemn to behold; he is allowed to display absolutely no partiality in the choosing of his wedding garments. He looks very much the same as he has dozens of times when attending formal affairs. The bride may be a veritable Flora, wreathed with garlands, veiled in mist of tulle and filmy lace. The only festive note allowed the bridegroom is a single blossom or boutonniere of white against the somber blackness of his coat.

Hand-trimmed blouses of sheer linen with Jabots trimmed with valenciennes lace are much worn.

Scarfs of satin or supple, changeable taffeta are used on both afternoon and evening dresses.

Big flat shapes, with oval crowns, having very little trimming, are the hats of the moment. Many are faced with eyel-embroidery in colors.

As a decorative agent in trimming a tailored suit there is nothing so effective as black and white silk.

Two shades of blue, one very much lighter, are used on linen tailored suits.

Little bonnets or crin or silver lace with ruffles of fine lace falling over the hair are very dainty and attractive.

The "mittens" stocking is a pretty fad. It is of black net, and is worn over a silk stocking of a contrasting color.

Shoemakers' heels are used on street shoes and boots, while the Louis XV heels are reserved for evening shoes.

The very newest form of watch is that which is placed within a pendant. Still smaller is a dainty watch set in a ring.

A deep sailor collar of white net chiffon or mousseline appears on many of the smartest mourning gowns of the season.

Small peaches, apples, oranges, plums, even representations of melons, figure in hat trimming, all with vivid glow of color.

Skirts on evening dresses are slashed at the side or front, showing ruffles of net or lace on the under dresses.

To wear with a white mourning shirt waist and skirt the correct mourning hat is either all of white crepe, made on the order of the popular lighter hat, or is of stark white with a bowknot trimming of white crepe or dull ribbed silk.

Shoes with pointed and round toes are alike quite out of favor. The present style resembles that worn by Louis XIV, with high, straight heels, cloth uppers to the ankles and large straight buckles. Ancient buckles are in very great demand.

There are many novelties in shoes for the afternoon, which are very striking. All black patent leather shoes are surrounded with a narrow band of red, green, violet or gray kid, and the wide ribbon fastening the shoes and the silk stockings are of the same color as this band.

One of the favorite accessories of the moment is composed of a wide band of velvet, black, blue or of a shade that will

HOW TO LIVE LONG

Use Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey as prescribed. It builds up the nerve tissue, tones the heart, gives power to the brain, strength and elasticity to the muscles and richness to the blood; it brings into play all the vital forces and stimulates the mucous surfaces and little glands of the stomach to a healthy action, thereby improving the digestion and assimilation of the food and giving to the system its full proportion of nourishment.

GOOD THINGS TO EAT

Economy is the big word in many households where the weekly pay envelope does not permit a free range in the selection of the daily menu. This does not necessarily mean a mean and uninviting table. In fact, the opposite is often the case, for, being compelled to give food values and combinations consideration, the careful cook evolves a peculiar knack of getting together dainty and nourishing meals at small cost.

Baked Potatoes on the Half Shell.

Select good sized potatoes, wash carefully dry, and bake until done. Take from the oven, cut in halves lengthwise, scrape out the white, add to it salt, pepper, a little milk and a small lump of butter, and beat to light froth. Fill the shells with the beaten white, heaping on mounds, and brown in a quick oven.

New Way of Serving Lettuce.

Select fresh, crisp lettuce, separate the leaves, wash well and place in a dish that will stand the heat. Heat equal parts of vinegar and water in a frying pan in which a teaspoonful of butter has been melted, let come to a boil and pour over the lettuce while hot.

Corn Bread Without Eggs.

Stir together one tablespoonful each of sugar and shortening. Add one cupful of sour milk in which has been dissolved a half teaspoonful of soda and a saltspoonful of salt. Add cornmeal and wheat flour, two-thirds meal and one-third flour, until the batter will just flatten out when poured in the pan. Bake twenty minutes.

Compote of Cherries.

Cook together one cup of sugar and three-fourths of a cup of water until a thick sirup. Drop into the sirup three cups pitted cherries, tart ones preferred, and let them just come to a boil. Take from the fire, let them simmer twenty minutes, then return and simmer gently, until tender, but not broken. With a skimmer remove and put into a compote dish. Pour into the sirup remaining in the kettle a half cup currant juice or the same amount of pineapple juice that has been drained from a can of fruit. Cook until thick, pour over the cherries, then stand in a cold place until ready to serve.

harmonize with the suit. The band fastening in the back under a flat bow is surrounded on the lower edge by a double ruffle of plaited tulle, which lies absolutely flat.

There is no decrease in the popularity of long, V-shaped hoods on short coats.

One of the quaint combinations of the summer season is the use of white or colored batiste and black or colored taffeta. The taffeta is of the new dow kind, which is as soft as satin, and the batiste may be plain or covered with eyel-embroidery. The silk is used as hem, as half of the sleeves, as a giraffe with sash ends. Broad stripes are very fashionable.

Parasols with shirred chiffon covers are shown in a large variety, printed chiffon being used over white and colored foundations. Sometimes the chiffon is shirred over the upper part of the cover only, and sometimes the shirred portion is used at the lower edge of the border.

The medium and high waist line will unquestionably be continued over the summer.

A feature that is common to all makers is the use of the turned kimono cuff band or finish for the peasant sleeve. Otherwise sleeves are varied to a considerable degree, as all the important makers are using both the peasant or one-piece cut and the regulation two-piece fitting sleeve set into the armhole.

Gowns are now made without weight, no matter how they are cut and trimmed.

KITCHENETTES.

When buying a broom test it by pressing the edge against the floor. If the straws bristle out and bend, the broom is a poor one. They should remain in a small, firm mass.

Brass should be cleaned with pulverized pumice stone, wet with household ammonia. Apply this paste first. When this has been dried polish with a camellia skin.

Never use shot in cleaning decanters. There is danger of it causing lead poisoning. Instead try the effect of a little soapy water and some fine sand. Shake the decanter till the glass is clean and then rinse with fresh water, finally with alcohol.

To clean hardwood furniture make a solution of two heaping tablespoons of sal soda to a quart of warm water. Put it on with a toothbrush, well soaped, the place being immediately rinsed with cold water and dried with a soft cloth. Afterward the wood should be rubbed with a mixture of two-thirds raw oil and one-third turpentine and a little salt. The secret of success lies in cleaning only a small piece at a time and in doing the work rapidly.

Dried orange peel, allowed to smolder on a piece of red-hot iron or an old shovel, will kill any bad odor in a room and leave a fragrant one behind.

To remove the smell of paint from a room leave in it over night a pall of water with three or four sliced onions in it. Shut the door, and in the morning the paint smell will have gone, the onions and water having absorbed it.

Cherry Jelly.

First make a lemon juice. A half box of gelatin is soaked in a scant cup of cold water for an hour. To this are then added a pint of boiling water, three-quarters of a cup of sugar and the juice of a lemon and a half. Stir until dissolved and strain into a pitcher or agate bowl. Pour enough into a mold to make jelly an inch deep when hardened, and upon this put a layer of large, fine cherries. As the jelly "sets," holding the cherries in position, add more jelly, then more cherries, until the dish is full. Keep the pitcher meanwhile where it is warm enough to prevent the contents from hardening, but keep the mold on the ice. Turn out on a bed of fruit leaves, and garnish with fresh cherries.

Wings are the favorite trimming on large, white straw hats worn in Paris.

The lace cap has by no means been abandoned since the going out of cold weather.

Flower hats are still popular.
